Harmonizers Number Twelve.

The invited guests numbered fifteen, to far as could be learned, but only So far as could be learned, but only twelve participated in the meeting. There were Jesse M. Smith, George Sutherland, State Statistician Charles De Moisy, W. Fred Adams, Governor Heber M. Wells, John C. Sharp, Secretary of State James T. Hammond, Morroni Heiner, Joseph Lippman, George A. Smith, and two men who were not known to The Herald reporter, but are supposed to be delegates from the outside. It is understood that Chairutside. It is understood that Chair-nan James H. Perhaps Uncle Jesse reasoned he was the pilot to guide the distressed craft of Utah Republicanism into the port of harmony. This is not known for sure. What is known for sure is that he gathered a combination liable to explode at any moment. As a mere matter of fact there were moments during the meeting when physical change the meeting to be put through the convention and the game was fairly hot all the time.

It was meeting was attended by twelve disidle, he argued, to think of eliminating exception, pledged their hands and their hearts to work much this morning in the effort to smash the national convention state, substituting in place of the slate candidates Senators Kearns course of the long discussion and when the resolution finally carried he was the only man present who did not vote for it. It was decided that the meeting and the plan should not be given newspaper publicity and that the men who attended the meeting should be around at work on the delegates early this morning.

Lively Time Expected Today.

The day's developments should prove interesting. If Sutherland becomes active against the scheme he is due bility that the country delegates may conclude to take the whole business out of the hands of the leaders of the factions, turn them all down and elect six men who have not been heard of in the fight.

It will be noticed that the ticket de-

The promoters of the scheme are not particular as to the two men chosen to fill in the delegation, so long as Kearns, Smoot, Sutherland and Howell go. That Sutherland suspects dynamite is shown by his opposition to the plan. He knew of at least two of the resolutions early in the afternoon and traveled about among the delegates at high speed for several hours in the high speed for several hours in the effort to defeat the passage of them. These were the Tribune and Smoot resolutions. It is not known whether he was aware of the third resolution before he went to the meeting, but that something of this nature was to come it was proposed to read his newspaper out of the party, vindicate his enemy, smoot, and give him a piace with at least three known opponents on the Chicago delegation. As the thing panned, however, it was not so bad for Kearns, who may rake a few chestnuts from the fire yet after keeping out of the fray at the primaries.
